PROPER DIET IN HOT WEATHER

Dr. N. E. Yorke Davies contributes a paper on this subject to the May number of the Gentl :man's Magazine. Dr. Nokes holds that if a man earn his living by the sweat of his brain he must. if he wishes to live long, maintain his health by the sweat of his brow-that is, he must in some form or other take muscular exercise. The diet laid down as suitable for summer would in that case, of course, almost universally apply.

The most suitable articles for hot weather in Dr. Nokes's experience are "fish, such kinds of ment as fowl and game, green vegetables, salads, and fruit. Farinaceous food—that is, starches should be taken in the very smallest quantity only. Sufficient sugar would be found in the lifferent fruits that the season of the year produces, and; therefore, should not be supplement. d" In the case of a man of ordinary size, doing ordinary physical or mental work, the followng would, he submits, represent an ordinary lay's food for hot weather as far as quantity and instituents are concerned:-

BREAKBAST, 8130 to 9 a m. -Two out of tea or coffee, sweetened with saccharine, one or two teaspoonfuls of cream in each, I oz. of dry toast, thinly buttered; 4 oz of grilled or boiled fish such as plaice, sole, whiting. haddock, end, or treat, or 4 az. of cold chicken, cold tongue, or of grilled steak or unch, 1.30 r.m.-2 or 3 oz of cold unition. beef or lamb : 3 or 4 oz. of green vegetables. plainly boil d. plenty of groon salad, made with vinegar, but without oil, 4 or 5 ez. of stewed fruit, water, or two or three glass of pure dry Moselle or other Rhine win-s. AFTERNOON TEA, 430, IF DESIRED -Two cups of ten as at breakfast, nothing INNER, 7 to S.-Julianna or nlear vegetable sonn : 3 or 4 oz. of fish : 3 or 4 oz. of any red meat, or of chicken, rabbit, game, or verison; 6 oz. of any green vegetable, with gravy from the most only; 4 oz. of slewed fruit or of raw fruit; a little stale or pulled . bread with a small piece of cheese.

This diet may be varied as to hour, but Dr. lokes thinks that three meals only should be eaten daily, and sufficient at each meal to satisfy the appetite. FRUIT AND FIGURES. Fruit may, however, be token at proper times nd, although it is made more popular now as a food than it used to be, it is, according to Dr. Nokes, only beneficial in moderate quantity. More fluid is, of course, no essury in hot weather than in cold, and so long as it is a harmless fluid Dr. Nokes questions whether too much can be taken. "Fluid in this way is to the kidneys what fresh air is to the lungs, and the waste of meat not used in the system is carried off by its aid ":--"A meat diet is healthy and life-prolonging if supplemented with plenty of fluid to enery off ts waste. That fluid should be taken in large quantities in the summer is a wise provision of nature, as the skin carries off a large amount of waste from the system, and therefore its activity should be stimulated in every way, and it is most desirable by frequent baths to keep-the pures open. . . In the summer acidulated drinks are the most gratiful to the palate. There can be no doubt that the most refreshing barmless, is the properly-made cap of tea." THE MOST IMPORTANT MEAL. In every well-appointed household dinner is the most important meal of the day, but a fashion in reg rd to this has, Dr. Nokes remarks, lately crept into use which is neither physiologically correct nor conducive to its en

I refer to the oustom now prevalent of comuenoing dinner with some anchovy-toast, caviare, or sardines on bread and butter, or some other seventy of a like nature. The proper c mmencement of dinner should be the old-fashioned dish of rood soup—and for this reason; that it is necessary that the first food taken at dinner should be quickly absorbed, so as to stimulate the pervous system and give tone to the stomach. In this way the appetite is stimulated and the sense of taste made more keen. Nothing acts so beneof course, pleasant surroundings and cheerful companionship."

Dr. Nokes concludes with a warning as to expegs of food. "Gluttony," says an old writer, " kills more than the sword."

He rules the big territory of Gaza, south of the Zambesi, and awhile ago he was visited by a missionary: For several days the King declined to see his visitor. It happened to be a time of festival and rejoicing, and his Majesty was very deep in his oups. When he was urged to see the missionary at once, he said: "I will not see him now. I would see any other of the white men in my country, because we drink together, and get drank together, but I am not going to make a fool of myself by letting this missionary see me drank when he sees me for the first time in his life." After about a week the missionary stations in his country. The Cologne Gazette tells an extraordinary Hny, in Belgium, it says, a young man was about to be married to a young lady, when he engaged in a firstation with another. This was objected to by the young man's betrothed. One day a trip to the forest was arranged by the sport. The family will set out in the morning, and, spreading their rugs in some field, spend the day there doing nothing, and apparently very contented with the occupation. The women squat on the ground, with their feet under the m, in that peculiar manner to which they are i libted for their bandy legs. It is not romanto but truth compels one to state that all If a kish girls ultimately become bandy-legged: the fine, well-made women one occasionally meets in Stamboul are mostly Circassians. A few cakes and some awests suffice for both young and old. A stranger is invariably struck with the prematurely serious nie which Turkish children wear. The elder girls do not play and run in the manner that English people expect of healthy children. A curious anecdote is told by the Visuus correspondent of the Daily News of Honrik Then's Insuranceswooing of his wife. The dramatist who has the Theatre at Bergen, and though he had written "Cutiling," " Gildet paa Bothang," and " Fru ! nger til Oesteraad." his fame was not such as to assure his success. When he fell in love with the beautiful daughter of Pastor Thereson, how to make known the fact to her troubled him for weeks. At last he resolved to write to her. He would come and fetch his aner swer the same afternoon at five. Did the lady accept him, she would be "at home;" of herwise not. At five o'clock he pres nted himself, and the maid asked him to go into the best room. He was very hopeful, and glad to have time to collect himself before he met the lady. But when he had waited hulf an hour awful doubts began to ussuit him. After an hour had passed he imagined the letter had not reached the young lady. Some fatal mistake was making a fool of him. Still he waited on. After two hours he began to be ashamed. of himself. She would learn that he had sattwo hours in that deserted house and would hough at him. At last he jamped up in a rage and ran to the door, tie was opening it when a loud peal of laughter arrested him. He turned and saw the fair head of his adored emerge from under the sofa. imperial quarto. FNGLISH AND CHINESE DIC''IONARY. WITH THE PUSTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of latey cars been compelled to coin to express the numerous obof foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterised Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst from the West. this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely re- ment, carefully revised each year, some of which quires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as Tourist, giving as they do every detail in coumany as any other Dictionary hitherto pub- nection with the places, their History and Topo-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who consisting of over Ergery highly interesting understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect articles, packed with facts concisely set out, and Yow Chong Pang, Esq. the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the notives themselves it explains subjects fully with which try and Port. very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. MARINE RISKS to all parts of the World, To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.
